

SCRATCHES MAR
WEEKLY MATINEE

Nine Horses Pulled Out Late
But Six Races Are Staged Nevertheless.

A wonderful card was drawn some what Saturday by scratches. In weekly matinee of the Tri-State Drive-In, the "S" entries were pulled out at the last minute, but all races were postponed.

The three-cornered pacing event billed as the feature of the day, was won by the "S" entry, "The Champ," showing his heels to Ruby Ring, who had been drafted from the "A's."

The victory of "The Champ" permitted him to move into first place in the competition for the Julius J. Goodman trophy, which he will win if he wins the largest total of points for the season. Tom Garrett trimmed Ruby in steeplechase, winning by two lengths in the fastest time of 2:10. This equals the season's record established earlier in the year.

Tom S. showed the way to pacesetter, sixth and captured the ribbon prize in the harness race. He finished her fine work of the previous week finishing ahead of Melba and Princess.

The affair proved to be the most exciting and the most hotly contested struggle yet staged in the drive-in.

Go Into Business Next Year.

In the heat of this pennant struggle one worry already clouds the brow of Miller Huggins for next season. It has come known recently that Duffy Law

The crackoutfielder of the team and one of the stars of the diamond, plans to retire at the end of the season and devote his time and attention to the automobile business in California, which is a flourishing business in California, which promises to net him greater financial returns than the baseball diamond possibly could.

Lewis recently was offered the agency in California for two popular picture stars and their personages. He also was offered the agency for the same territory in another department of the automobile business, which he is thinking seriously of accepting.

At the same time J. Franklin Rains has indicated that he has a big future in Trauma, Md. holds greater attraction.

tions for him than the uncertain struts of baseball. This is not the first time that Baker has threatened to retire. He has tasted the sweets of baseball fame, realizes how fleeting is the fame and glory of a diamond star and is ready to leave the game to younger men.

The loss of these stars would bludge whatever hopes the Yankees might have of winning the next year's pennant. Lewis is the most dependable player on the Yankee team. Come what may, Lewis is in there making the hardest plays look easy and punching out the time base hits.

Lewis is not only a star under ordinary conditions, but he is what the baseball men call a crack money player.

That is to say, that he is a man to do things when big things are necessary. He is a player of iron nerve who refuses to be discouraged no matter how the game goes. Although he got to a bad start he made up for this as the season progressed, and he has surely proved a valuable addition to the team.

The loss of Baker would leave a glaring hole at the far turn of the Yankee machine. The Trappe king has slowed up to a certain extent and his indifference to the game crops up at times. This is especially true in running catches. He almost refuses to run out.

grounder to the infield and so lost many a base hit. At the same time is a great fielder with a wonderful power of hands and fine arm. He is still a dangerous hitter of old and a calm player under the stress of action.

Secured To Coach Fordham Eleven

Charlie Brickley, the former H

ward gridiron star, will coach the football team at Fordham university next fall, succeeding Eddie Sisakind. Briceley has had considerable experience as a coach at Harvard, where he acted as an assistant to Percy Haughton on various occasions, and also at Boston college, where he was head coach. Last Cliff Blankenship, well known throughout the Coast league, has disposed of his business interests in Oxnard and purchased a bowling alley in Anaheim. That's a straight tip.

Spokane plans to come back in baseball at some future date, for where Blankenship is there is bound to find interest in baseball.
